```
#include <stdio.h>
jint main() {
         int p,q,s;
         printf("Enter s,q,p\n");
         scanf("%d%d%d",&s,&q,&p);
         switch(s)
         {
                  case 1:
                  {
                           switch(q)
                                    case 1:
                                             switch(p)
                                             {
                                                      case 1:
                                                               printf("st1");
                                                      break;
                                                      case 0:
                                                               printf("st2");
                                                      break;
                                    break;
                                    case 0:
                                             printf("st3,st2");
                                             switch(p)
                                             {
                                                      case 0:
                                                               printf(",st1");
                                                      break;
                                    break;
                           }
                  break;
                  }
                  case 0:
                  {
                           switch(q)
                                    case 1:
                                             switch(p)
                                                      case 0:
                                                               printf("st2,st1");
                                                      break;
                                    break;
                                    }
                                    case 0:
                                             printf("st1");
                                    break;
                           }
                  break;
         }
```

return 0;

}

q